INCOME TAX RETURNS

Federal law requires a return to be made by every citizen, regardless of the amount of net income, if having a gross income of:

$750 if single for entire year, or married and not living with husband or wife for any part of the year.

$1,000 if married and living with husband or wife for the entire year.

Returns for 1941 must be filed not later than March 15, 1942, but may be filed now.

I have been preparing returns for years, and am an expert; frequently I save taxpayers more than my charge by reason of knowing how to prepare the returns and claiming all the deductions allowable.

My regular customers will require all my time in March. Don't postpone this important return, but see me now, as there are severe penalties for failure to file by March 15.

FAVORABLE PRICES FOR NAVAL STORES

Naval Stores Inspector Discusses Program With Farmers Friday Night

Farmers working their timber in 1942 will be paid 1 1/2 cents per bush by the naval stores program, John G. Rawls, naval stores inspector, advised members of the Farm Bureau at their regular meeting Friday night.

Mr. Rawls pointed out that turpentine is selling for a favorable price and urged every farmer to work as much of his timber as he had labor to handle.

Each farmer will be given up to a crop bag, even though they have not been in the naval stores program before. Mr. Rawls suggested that any farmers desiring to work their timber this year, who are not acquainted with the operations of the program, should come by his office and get straight on the details of compliance before going ahead.

It was also announced that AAA will increase all tobacco allotments a flat 10 per cent over the 1941 allotment. Homer S. Durden, now with the tobacco section of AAA, authorized the statement.

GEA Peanut Association authorized the announcement at the meeting that the field-run peanuts in the local warehouse can be bought for planting seed at cost, estimated at from $80 to $90 per ton in five-ton lots or more. The association stated that any acreage seed would be consigned to some local merchant for planting purposes.

Agricultural officials are interested enough in getting more peanuts planted to arrange with AAA to pay for the seed now and let the amount be deducted from the 1942 payments. Details of this system will be available in time to procure the seed. Bulloch county farmers listed 8,500 acres of peanuts for 1942 for digging. With ample seed available this acreage will probably be increased.

Frederic Blitch, president of the organization, announced that officers for 1942 will be elected at the next regular meeting, January 23.

OLIVE BRANCH G. A.'s The Olive Branch G. A.'s held their monthly meeting Thursday night at the church. The meeting was opened with a prayer, followed by our theme song, "We're a Story to Tell to the Nation." The devotional was conducted by our leader, Mrs. P. F. Martin. This meeting was held especially for the election of officers. Those elected were: President, Blanche Greene; vice-president, Bessie Gish; secretary and treasurer, Lois Martin; program chairman, Julia Mae Goss; social chairman, Cleo Pope; stewardship chairman, Flossie Hinton; White Cross chairman, Blanche Gish; press chairman, Virginia Hall.

POTASH

...an essential
AMERICAN industry

All plant life depends upon potash because it is one of the necessary plant foods. Prior to 1914 scarcely any potash was produced in this country. When European supplies were cut off during the last war, the price of potash increased from $35 to as high as $500 per ton, and in most cases no potash at any price was available. Born in that emergency, an American potash industry has been developed, with average prices now much below those of 1914, to a point which will assure supplies of this necessary plant food in the United States, its possessions, Canada, and Cuba. Thus does this relatively new industry take a front-line position in American defense.

NEWS OF THE WEEK OVER THE NATION

National and International Problems Inseparable From Local Welfare of Today

It is not possible at this time to detail all the events and circumstances which led to Japan's victories in the Pacific. But the broad outlines are clear. We underestimated the extent and the striking power of the Japanese air and naval forces. We were over-confident. We did not turn the Philippines and the lesser islands into the kind of bastions which could have repelled a major attack. Further, we, like the rest of the democracies, were lethargic—we wastefully disregarded the warning of the well-known Admiral to Walter Lippman, Japan must have spent at least eighteen months preparing for an attack on so vast a scale. But few Americans believed war was actually coming in the Pacific.

Bright spot in the Philippine war has been the superb fighting spirit shown by the American and Filipino troops commanded by General MacArthur, who seems to have fully lived up to his reputation as the ablest American general officer. MacArthur's forces were tremendously outnumbered. Their equipment was inferior to that of the Japanese. After the early days of fighting, they had no air power to speak of. Yet they made the enemy pay a tremendous toll in men and material for every inch of ground taken and, at this writing, they have entrenched themselves on Luzon, leading to Manila, and on the great fortress of Corregidor in Manila Bay, and are continuing the fight.

Many have wondered why MacArthur was not given substantial U. S. naval aid. In the opinion of the strategists, it would have been suicidal for him to have sent major fleet forces in an attempt to save Manila. Japan has big naval bases in Formosa and on the mandated islands, some of which are well under a thousand miles from Luzon. Our forces' nearest major base is many thousands of miles away from the scene of action at Pearl Harbor.

Furthermore, while Luzon is important, it is not vital. What the allied Pacific powers must attempt to save at all costs is Singapore, which is the key to the entire Far East, including the rich Dutch East Indies. All possible action to strengthen the defense of the Malaya peninsula, and air battle which will soon take place along the Malayan peninsula. The commanders of great armies and navies must take the long view, and look to the winning war, not the scattered, costly victories which might imperil the main objective. It is often said that the prime objective of this war is the destruction of the Nazis—that, once this is done, Japan and Hitler's other allies can be taken care of in their turn. The news which comes from Russia is immensely encouraging to the allied powers. The German war continues, and the destruction of German divisions and German equipment is on an almost incredible scale. The Russian command now says that it means to press forward until Germany itself is turned into a battlefield. And in Lybia, the British have won a victory which may prove of immense importance to the eventual winning of the entire war.

This country is now, for the first time, realizing what modern war means. The order freezing sales of new motor cars and prohibiting the production of new cars after January, indicates the way the wind blows. It may be expected that our lives will be revolutionized with astounding speed. There will be no luxuries at all, and many seeming necessities will be foregone or produced in bare minimum quantities. At this moment, we are spending about 25 per cent of our national income for war purposes. By the end of the year we will, if the plans go through, be spending as much as 60 per cent. What that will mean to the civilian standard of living is easily seen.

Yet there is no grumbling. Right-wingers and left-wingers, labor leaders and big industrialists, Democrats and Republicans alike, agree that an all-out effort, with all the privations entailed, must be made. There is much criticism of administration long-pull objectives. It is significant that in the civil government, as in the armed forces, changes are being made in executive personnel, designed to weed out the unfit and replace them with men who will get results.

Time is a great factor now—time to produce the instruments of war, and to train the necessary troops. Japan got the jump on us, as Germany did Russia and Britain in the early days of conflict, because she had spent years preparing for war while

ONLY DEPENDENCY GIVEN EXEMPTION

Wives Who Quit Work Cannot Save Husbands From Military Service

Selective service service headquarters announced today that married men between the ages of 20 and 44, inclusive, will be subjected to reclassification whose wives were not financially dependent upon them. Many instances have come to the attention of selective service boards of wives quitting work voluntarily after being employed at good salaries for many months, in the hope that their retirement from gainful occupation would enable their husbands to claim the financial dependence of their wives and escape military service.

Many business concerns have complained that if this wholesale withdrawal of married women of experience from employment is allowed to continue it will present an acute danger to national defense.

Selective service officials expressed the opinion that voluntary retirement from work by married women capable of supporting themselves would be considered as a deliberate attempt to aid their husbands to evade military service, and that no exemption from military service would be granted to husbands under such circumstances.

Two Important Dates

IN THE LIFE of every country editor there are two important days—Thursday, when he gets his paper in the mail and works his head nearly off; and Sunday, when he doesn't have to work at all.

As far apart as these days are in their significance, you'd think there would be no excuse for a mix-up, but if you think that, you are mistaken. Maybe you noticed that the last issue of the Times was dated "Thursday, Jan. 11th," and maybe you wondered how we "got that way." Well, we've told you; the calendar at the office looked bad that day and we didn't want to print it. But the error was made in affixing the wrong day of the month. We knew better, to be sure, but we just made a mistake.

And speaking more of mistakes: We are getting more and more to recognize our frailty in that respect. Hardly a week passes but that some friend calls our attention to a typographical error. It's too late to make corrections, however, after the paper is printed. Now, if there were a way to go back and correct the error, we would just go around to the office the day before and read proofs for us, we know what'd happen—if we depended upon the error, we'd still have errors.

But still we deplore errors like that last week. They tend to shake confidence of our readers. One lady whose birthday falls on the 9th of January had planned to celebrate on Friday. When she got her Times Thursday and noticed that it was dated January 11th she thought she had over-slept her opportunity to celebrate. Most women want every birthday they are entitled to, you know; and we are sorry if the friend lost a year on our account.

"Ain't Mad at Anybody"

THIS SLOGAN, the origin of which is unknown and the intent of which is vague, sprang into more or less common use during the recent months. Today it's out of use. We are being encouraged to be mad, but not at the same persons we used to be mad at.

Personally we have changed our group of dislikes completely. Some persons we used to think were unbearable, we now would like to embrace with fond affection; some others for whom we felt devotion—well, at least we're cooled down. Maybe that comes from old age; maybe it comes from a better understanding.

A little while ago we wept at the misfortune which had come upon Finland. We had been buying our newspapers from her for more than a decade, and Finland had set a worthy example for debt-paying. We wept when Russia swept down and overran her. Today we have grown cool toward Finland (though we can't exactly be mad at her even yet), and we are enthused at Russia's endurance and doggedness. That's a way we have.

Sixty years ago we attended a missionary meeting with our mother and spent our first time trying to change the life habits and character of the Chinese. We wonder if they ever felt the effect of our dime and our intention. We despised Chinese men because they left their shirts untucked, showing; we despised Chinese women because they cranked their feet to the point past reason. The women waddled, they told us, when they walked; the men's shirts floated in the wind.

Today we love every slant-eyed Chinese man and woman. So far as we are concerned, the men are at liberty to wear their shirts in or out; the women are welcome to do what they wish to their feet.

We've changed in our lives and dislikes. Today young American men show more shirt-tails than those despised Chinamen of the other century; today American women wear nothing soles than Chinese girls wear nothing soles. We are not exactly mad at these young Americans, but we are sad they have done that thing to us. But we do love the Chinese men and women and children!

Old-Time Grandmas

WE SHALL never cease to be thankful our own mother never dropped silver ashes in our eyes when we were an infant. Mothers of this day are all right, to be sure, for children who never knew any other kind; but we still like 'em in a way, and most of them wear their hearts in the right place. If they forget sometimes to do the right thing, if given time they'll come around and make amends. So what we are about to say is not intended as criticism of modern-day mothers.

What we had in mind when we sat down, however, was to write an ode to old-time grandmothers. They may not all have been of one class today; some of them might have been better than others, to be sure; but our intimate acquaintance with grandmothers of the olden times still gives them high rank in our hall of memory.

We sat by Marvin Pittman at Rotary dinner Monday, and Dan Burney had placed a bottle of pickled peppers in the center of the table. Personally we have never cared much for peppers, red, green or yellow. We always felt that if we wanted heat, we could stick our finger in the fire and get it, so we let peppers alone as a needless luxury. Old Grandpa Kilgore, however, was one of those hardened old men—we believe they called him a fire-eater in the Civil War days. As we remember him he always had a red pepper bush growing by the front gate of his home. Every time we walked past the bush, something got into our eyes and we wept copiously with no apparent reason. Kindly old Grandma Kilgore was sorry for us, and we recall one day as we wept she gave us an errand. "Go out to the chicken roost," she said, "and get three yellow feathers." Her hens were all white, and it took some little time under the circumstances to find the three yellow feathers. When we came back and delivered them to her, she asked about the burning in our eyes, and we discovered that we had been crying. The time spent under the hen roost had worked the cure. Now, maybe Grandma Kilgore didn't know any sciences, but she knew how to stop the red pepper burning; the fumes from the roost had done the work, and she had saved us into the remedy without any waste of explanations which might have aroused suspicion or even opposition.

And we still carry this in our mind as a species of statecraft which is to the credit of old grandmothers. Incidentally, as we talked with Marvin Pittman about our antipathy to red pepper, a flood of memories welled up. We recalled with some humility that we played a trick on old Grandma Kilgore along about that time for which we have never made proper amends. As a very small lad, it seemed to us that their supper time must have been near midnight. At the table one of those long evenings we found ourselves going drowsy, and dozed over on the table. She warned us against the possibility of going to sleep at the table. "Go wash your feet," she said, "and then you can go to bed." We didn't reply. We knew she wouldn't be severe, and we slept. Sometime later, we were awakened and Grandma Kilgore was squatting under the bed, washing our feet. We were ashamed then, and still are, but we kept quiet while she finished and even as she gently lifted us from our chair and placed us under the covers. Dear old Grandma, please forgive us for this imposition upon your gentle spirit. We are mortally grateful that she permitted you to do this, yet we thank you.

But now, dear Grandma, you owe us one, which makes us even. You wanted to put a honey-and-flour plaster on our forehead where there was a boil; we opposed the plaster from conscientious reasons—it would look messy—you readily submitted; we creased in bed victoriously, rather regretful that you hadn't persisted. And when we awoke the next morning that honey-and-flour plaster was right where you had attempted to place it the night before. Now, don't you think it was a sort of deception to permit a boy to go to bed and to sleep feeling that he had won a victory, only to wake up and find he had been outwitted.

Dispassionately at this far-removed day, we are convinced that grandmothers of the olden times were not such duds as present-day youths seem to think. They didn't smoke cigarettes, to be sure, and their dresses were mighty long; but they smoked pipes sometimes, and they knew how to have their way without undue wrangling about it. That was what today we call statesmanship!

Bulloch County Can

Raise Fine Turkeys

"Bulloch county can produce as good beef and turkeys as any place," J. A. Bunce declared this week.

Mr. Bunce made this statement after he had delivered a load of turkeys in Atlanta and they were graded for him. Fifty-three of fifty-four of the turkeys he carried to Atlanta graded U. S. prime, and the other one graded No. 2.

Mr. Bunce said he had known for sometime that Bulloch county could produce beef comparable to that from any other section but this is the first time his turkeys had been strictly graded. The fifty-four turkeys returned him $6.15 each, or $331.80.

Mr. Bunce was offered 18 cents per pound for these turkeys before Christmas and sold them for 22 cents this week.

Yates, who gave his age at 24, was arrested by Police Chief Edgar Hart and members of the city police force in the northern section of Statesboro two weeks ago after having a collision with another car and of them were from Bulloch county, and of the six making a record of all As, five were Bulloch county students.

Bulloch County Girl

Wins Garden Contest

Athelene Hill was declared a winner in the 4-H club garden contest this week, according to Miss Emmie Nelson, assistant state 4-H club leader. This contest was a garden production and earning budget contest sponsored by the H. G. Easting Seed Company in 1941. Each entrant planned and carried out a canning budget from her garden project for her family.

Miss Irma Spears, county home demonstration agent, stated that Athelene had been declared a county winner of 254 4-H club girls in Bulloch county some two weeks ago by disinterested judges. When her outstanding records reached Athens she was awarded a sterling silver sugar spoon as a state winner.

Other judges, E. R. Lewis and Miss Winifred Jordan, are very glad to welcome Miss Alice Jo Lane and Mrs. Harris Harvill in their places. We have a number of new pupils and are also glad to have them with us.

The following grades were awarded fifty cents each in cash: Mrs. Don test sponsored by the H. G. Easting Seed Company in 1941. Each entrant planned and carried out a canning budget from her garden project for her family.

IMPORTANT TASK TO FEED THE ARMY

More Than Ever Before
Quartermaster Corps Has Serious Duty to Perform

Veterans of the 1917-18 World War will recall, with perhaps a faint smile, the AEF quartermaster corps. Soldiers assigned to this arm of the service were called as "goldbricks," or worse.

But then as now the quartermaster corps went about its business of feeding and clothing Uncle Sam's hard-fighting soldiers. Although warplanes were then in their infancy, enemy pilots took great delight in blasting the carefully-planned supply system. Convoys of trucks, crawling through the muddy fields of Flanders or dodging shattered trees in Belleau Woods, were defenseless victims of the marauding gun fliers.

Picture then today the increased intensity of aerial assaults on the quartermaster corps as it labors to bring food and other supplies to the front lines in World War II. Dive bombers have been perfected. Artillery weapons can shoot far and straight. Parachute troops pose a constant menace.

But even with the increased danger, the quartermaster corps has developed a defense for its supply lines designed to overcome the hardest assault. True to the tradition of America, this versatile branch of the armed forces is prepared to protect its vital life line.

Each quartermaster field force is armed "to the teeth" and these stalwart soldiers are well trained in the art of fighting for they know that any disruption of service means that the combat unit may go unfed.

During the recent maneuvers in Louisiana and the Carolinas, Brigadier General James L. Frink, Fourth Corps Area quartermaster and recently named deputy quartermaster general in charge of field operations, and his staff, were put to their most crucial test and the success of these field exercises well illustrates the ability of the supply forces.

Transportation of food and gasoline was at night, under the strictest blackout conditions but not a single case was recorded where combat units went un supplied. Food, transported to temporary bivouacs, was prepared behind the fighting lines and cooked in mobile field kitchens, mounted on trucks, at a fifty-mile-an-hour clip. When the trucks reached the front the food was steaming hot and ready to be served.

So while America girls for this struggle, let not the folks left at home worry about the soldiers' supply of food, warm clothing, and other necessities. The quartermaster corps is on the job. They know their business and, since the Revolutionary War, have shown the same fighting spirit evidenced by their fellow-soldiers in the infantry, field artillery and cavalry. Today officers and soldiers of the quartermaster corps stand shoulder to shoulder with the rest of the army, ready to deal swift defeat to the enemies of freedom, justice and humanity.

Carried Rural Mail Twenty-Eight Years

When Melvin Hendrix, rural letter carrier on the Port route, delivered his mail Wednesday, he bade adieu to the group of people with whom he had daily associated for twenty-eight years. Having arrived at the retiring age of 65, Mr. Hendrix had planned to exercise that privilege, but two days before he was notified by wire that he was permitted to continue for another year if he so desired. He preferred to quit on a half-salary basis.

It wasn't altogether age, however, which induced his retirement. He had been going strong enough, perhaps, till about two years ago a drunken driver ran him into a collision which nearly cost his life. He has never since then fully recovered his agility. It was an interesting incident in connection with his retirement that two neighbors who signed his bond twenty-eight years ago, Mollie Denmark and Ed Smith, remained in that capacity until the last day of his service.

Newspapers Requested Not Publish Rumors

In accordance with the policy announced previously by the President and the Secretary of the Navy, the navy department has requested newspapers to refrain from publishing reports and rumors of enemy submarine sinkings except in cases where they can quote specifically "a responsible authority of the federal government."

37,500 GEORGIANS TO BE REGISTERED

Total of Two Age Groups
Will Approximate Sixteen
Million in United States

Approximately 37,500 male residents in Georgia will be registered in the 20 and 21-year-old groups on February 16th, Brig. Gen. Sion B. Hawkins, state director of Selective Service, announced today.

National Selective Service headquarters anticipates a total registration in Continental United States of about 9,000,000 men between the ages of 20 and 45 years, the director has been advised, and of these about 1,650,000 will be in the 20-21-year-old group.

It also is estimated that around 7,350,000 in the 36 and 44-year-old group will be registered throughout the United States on February 16th, together with some of the 21 to 36-year-old groups who are unable or neglected to register at the two previous registrations.

Georgia's Farms May Exceed Food Quotas

Atlanta, Jan. 12 (GPS).—If Georgia farmers stick to their goals, as indicated by recent farm plan sheet sign-up, they will produce food for victory far in excess of the goals set up for this state, declared T. R. Breedlove, chairman of the State USDA Defense Board, Chairman Breedlove's opinion was expressed co-incidentally with transmittal of the state board's report to Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard on results of the sign-up. Said Mr. Breedlove:

"In only one instance did Georgia farmers fail to completely meet the announced goal. That was in peanuts. The tabulation intentions indicated they would fall a little short of meeting the fixed goal of 1,137,000 acres of peanuts for market. However, the counties in the old peanut belt which did not reach their assigned goals may do better than their expressed intentions if a satisfactory force for peanut oil prices is announced sufficiently in advance of planting time."

Brief Summary of Steps
Taken By Our Nation To Further Aid Democracies

The President in a message to Congress said he had directed federal agencies to arrange a new schedule of war production calling for 60,000 planes in 1942, including 45,000 combat craft, and 125,000 in 1943, including 100,000 combat units; 45,000 tanks in 1942 and 75,000 in 1943; 20,000 anti-aircraft guns in 1942 and 35,000 in 1943; 8,000,000 deadweight tons of merchant ships in 1942 and 10,000,000 in 1943.

The President told Congress he would order the U. S. armed forces to a world-wide front to find the enemy and "hit him and hit him again wherever and whenever we can reach him." He said U. S. forces would take up positions if necessary in the British Isles, the Far East and on all oceans and bases within and without the New World necessary to protect the Western Hemisphere.

The President proposed total expenditures in the fiscal year of 1943 of $77,000,000,000. Of this $56,000,000,000 would be for the war. He said total war expenditures are now at the rate of approximately $2,000,000,000 a month and may surpass $5,000,000,000 a month during fiscal 1943. The President said he could not predict ultimate costs, "because I cannot predict the changing fortunes of war," but he proposed an increase in tax collections to $27,000,000,000.

Conservation of Materials

OPM announced industrial conservation programs will be set up in more than thirty industrial centers to wreck old machinery and equipment to salvage needed materials; to minimize waste and spoilage; to handle scrap and speed its return to users.

OPM also recommended elimination of special deliveries of milk and substitution every-other-day delivery for daily delivery to conserve tires. The agency recommended manufacturers simplify the types of containers and other containers and eliminate those not necessary; ordered all tin and lead scrap under rationing control, restricted use of ethyl alcohol in toilet soaps, mouth washes, rubbing alcohol, candy glazes; cut use of vending machines; disposing of cigarettes, food, candy and other items; cut the amount of wool for civilian use to 80 per cent of last year, and restricted the use of copper in certain radio parts.

OPM granted permission to auto manufacturers to make 204,848 cars in January in order to use up parts already made before the plants are converted for war production. Congress passed a law permitting the President to order daylight saving time to save electric power.

Prices

The President sent a message to Congress asking for provision for a single price administrator for all prices in the price control legislation now under consideration. The OPM issued a pamphlet, "How to Stop Inflation," explaining in non-technical language the causes of inflation, measures taken in other countries and what can be done here to keep prices down. The Bureau of Labor Statistics reported wholesale prices are now at the highest level since 1939—17.6 per cent above this time last year.

Civilian Defense

The President appointed James M. Lanolis, dean of the Harvard Law School, as executive of the Office of Civilian Defense to direct the civilian defense program under the general supervision of Director LaGuardia, who is also mayor of New York City. The house and senate passed a bill appropriating $100,000,000 for civilian defense. OGD asked its regional directors to obtain from state and city governments all possible equipment needed by the auxiliary firemen, policemen, air raid wardens and other volunteers. Director McNutt of the Defense Health and Welfare Service set up in each of the forty-eight states a state nursing council on defense to promote recruiting of student nursing and enrollment of 50,000 young women in nursing schools in 1942.

Agriculture

The Oklahoma agriculture defense board established an experimental "machinery bank" to provide a reservoir of spare parts for farm equipment. All idle farming equipment on Oklahoma's 32,000 farms will be centrally located, repaired and made available to farmers as they need it.

Pan-American Relations

OPM announced that for the first time in recent history U. S. imports from Latin America have been larger than exports. U. S. trade in Latin America, the agency said, was one-third larger than in the corresponding period of 1940 and about 75 per cent larger than in the first three quarters of 1939. The state department elevated the U. S. legations in Paraguay, Ecuador and Bolivia to the rank of embassies in "formal recognition of the importance of developments" leading to Pan-American solidarity. Under Secretary Welles left Washington to attend the Pan-American conference of foreign ministers at Rio de Janeiro January 15.

The War Front

The White House announced the U. S. Britain, the Netherlands, and the Dominion governments agreed to a uniform command in the Southwest Pacific area with all sea, land and air forces under Gen. Wavell of the British army, with Lt. Gen. Brett, of the U. S. army air forces, as next in command. Gen. MacArthur, commander in the Philippines, reported his lines holding against renewed Japanese attacks. The army and navy reported sinking three cargo ships of 10,000 tons each, one enemy transport and more than 500 Japanese bombers and fighting planes. The marine corps announced that new reports showed that the defenders of Wake Island had sunk one cruiser, four destroyers, one submarine and one gunboat before succumbing. The President cited the entire Wake Island garrison for heroism.

The White House announced the RAP dropped more than 2,000,000 American pamphlets on Nazi-occupied France stressing the historic ties between the American and French people. The pamphlets included plans for the liberation of France, the Statute of Liberty and quotations from the President's speeches.

The President set February 16th for selective service registration of men from 20 to 44 who have not previously registered.

Jimmie and Isaac Buncie joined the air corps last week in Atlanta. Jimmie, 21 years old, finished his studies at the college here in December after an aviation cadet without examination and sent to Maxwell Field, Alabama, for training.

GEORGIA SCHOOLS SEVEN-DAY WEEK

Vocational Classes Train
Men and Women For Urgent Defense Jobs

To speed up the training of men and women for places on production lines, Georgia's vocational schools will go on a seven-day week, and equipment will be shifted as needed to meet the needs of new and expanding classes, the State Council of Administrators has announced. The new schedule, effective immediately, also calls for round-the-clock operations in some schools and a minimum eight hour work day in all others.

The council, through Marion A. O'Connor, director of the United States Employment Service for Georgia and council member, said the extra work day and more and larger daily classes will increase the output of trainees for the vital aviation and ship building industries to approximately 5,000 every three months.

Classes in the Atlanta area, Mr. O'Connor said, have become so crowded that arrangements have been made to transport the overflow of some fifty students to Griffin to receive instruction in airplane welding and machine shop work.

Beginning Monday, the Griffin schools will operate on a twenty-four hour basis along with Atlanta, Albany, Augusta, Columbus, Dalton, Waycross and Savannah.

Pointing out that the state had received about one-half of the equipment ordered, Mr. O'Connor said the transfer of some equipment to places where there are reservoirs of unemployed workers was essential. He emphasized that no program will be curtailed because of any transfers and added that the training facilities of each school will be supplemented as pending orders are filled.

Over $430,000 for training equipment has been allotted by the government for Georgia schools as follows: Albany $12,393.07, Athens $19,250.67, Atlanta $19,466.81, Augusta $38,327.93, Columbus $23,827.20, Dalton $12,744.55, Fort Valley $5,535.50, Fulton county $36,386.43, Georgia Tech $25,401.17, Griffin $25,528.06, Jackson $25,000.00, Macon, $24,285.55, Rome $19,337.85, Savannah $149,290.25, Waycross $13,004.93; total $430,626.13.

The job of the vocational schools is to train workers for specific jobs and to provide less specialized training for out-of-school youth. The vocational division of the State Department of Education supervises the training.
